Notes from the drawing office

Welcome to another issue of the HARVEY magazine, now we are into double figures with our TENTH issue! We celebrate with a magazine focusing on something which is at the very core of what we do at HARVEY Maps - mapping for outdoor events. The first maps we ever produced were for mountain marathons and orienteering competitions, and event mapping has remained at the heart of the company ever since. We're proud to support some of the UK's most demanding events as part of your essential kit. I'm sure you already know that HARVEY maps are lightweight, weatherproof, and purpose-built for performance. But most importantly, they're readable when you need them most - when the weather turns, when signs disappear, and when fatigue clouds judgment. We are here to get you to the finish line and be a part of the decisions you make on the side of a hill - your choice of route hinges on the trust you place in a square of printed map that tells you, yes, this is the way. We have put together a calendar of exciting events where you will see HARVEY mapping, from ultramarathons to navigational tests, starting on p.8. Where will your next challenge be?

Another feature in this issue which I am particularly thrilled about is our new Ultramap of the Campsie Fells. When I was a student at Glasgow University I would choose to 'study' on the 7th floor of the library just because it had amazing views of the Campsies. I would look out of the windows and dream of weekends away from books, walking in those hills and exploring beyond. Read more on p.14.

And speaking of beginnings, we all have to start our navigation journey somewhere, so we have teamed up with the NNAS to provide a simple list of tips to help you make the most of your map. It has been said that navigation is made of 3 things: understanding the map, observing your surroundings, and being confident in the other two! Our simple guide covers the basics to get you started, or as a reminder if you are well on your way!

MAKE THE MOST OF YOUR MAP

We've teamed up with our friends at the National Navigation Award Scheme (NNAS) to compile 6 handy tips to help boost your navigation skills and confidence.

Whether you are a mountain leader or you're holding a map for the first time, it is always important to cover the basics, and make sure you can get the most out of your map!

2 GETTING THE MOST OUT OF YOUR HARVEY MAP

Plan ahead - use the map to decide on your route, identify key features, rest stops, escape routes, and hazards.

Check scale and distance - HARVEY map scales are 1:25,000 or 1:40,000. Each square on your map is 1km wide. That usually means about 15 to 20 minutes of walking on gentle, flat ground. Heading uphill? Add roughly 1 minute for every contour line you climb.

3 UNDERSTANDING WHAT'S ON THE HARVEY MAP

HARVEY maps are built for clarity, with slightly different symbols and colour schemes compared to OS maps. The map key explains all the key features.

1 SETTING THE MAP (Orienting it to the Ground) - this means turning the map to match your surroundings

1. Lay the map flat
2. Place your compass on the map, aligning the edge with the north-south grid lines
3. Rotate the map until the red needle on the compass points to the top of the map (grid north)
4. Use landmarks - match visible features (like a hill or river) to their position on the map.

Top tip: add a red mark to the top edge of your map so "red to red" becomes second nature.

Pair with a compass

Learn basic navigation with a compass.

Fold it and keep it handy

Nobody wants to wrestle with a full sized map in the wind. As HARVEY maps are waterproof and tear-resistant you can easily fold the map to just the area you're walking for greater clarity.

Contour lines - the brown lines (grey when on rocky terrain) are contours which show you the shape of the land. Lines close together mean steep ground. If you see barely any lines, you're likely on flatter ground like a moor, valley or open grassland.

4 STICK TO THE PATHS

Most people prefer to stay on paths and that's absolutely fine! HARVEY maps are designed with walkers in mind, and trails, tracks and landmarks are all shown.

5 SPOT AND TICK OFF

Break your route into short sections. Look out for features you'll pass like streams, bends, woodland edges or junctions.

Tick them off as you walk to track your progress. If you think you've gone too far, stop and backtrack. Don't guess or cut across open ground unless you're confident.

6 WANT TO LEVEL UP?

Think of this as Map 101. If you want to learn how to use your map like a pro, check out the National Navigation Award Scheme. They're the team behind this guide - navigation experts with award courses across the UK to help you grow your confidence step-by-step.

Final Tip: always bring a compass, have a planned route, and check the weather. Even though HARVEY maps are waterproof and accurate, your knowledge and judgment are your best tools on the hill.

Beacons Way

The Beacons Way is a dramatic journey through the heart of mid-Wales - a stunning 159km route of the wild and windswept landscapes of Bannau Brycheiniog (Brecon Beacons National Park). From the ancient market town of Abergavenny to the quiet western village of Llangadog, this trail includes jagged ridgelines, tranquil valleys and high, open moorland. At the midway point, you can also expect to encounter rugged mountains - including Pen y Fan, the highest peak in southern Britain.

The Beacons Way is perfect as it caters to both walkers and runners alike - whereas walkers enjoy taking their time, runners chase endurance, adrenaline and the thrill of the terrain. Walking the Beacons Way typically takes about 1 week, offering plenty of time to explore the varied landscapes, history, and solitude mid-Wales has to offer. By contrast, running the Way is a fast, high-intensity challenge, demanding peak fitness, minimal gear, and mental grit (see more about the Beacons Way Ultra on page 10).

MAPS & PLACES

Pen y Fan

If you are to walk (or indeed run) the Beacons Way, then it is nigh on impossible to not set foot atop Pen y Fan and miss out on the route's highest point. Pen y Fan translates into English as 'the top of the summit', however, it has not always been known by this name.

In the Middle Ages, the old name for Pen y Fan (together with the secondary summit nearby of Corn Du) was Cadair

Arthur, meaning Arthur's Chair. It is not exactly known which Arthur this was actually referring to, however, legend has it that King Arthur once came to the aid of the people of Brecon to deal with a herd of wild boar. The story says that Arthur killed the boars' leader, whose body rolled down into the river, which today is known as Afon Twrch (river of the boar).

explore the Trails of Wales

Wales is home to some of the most beautiful long-distance trails in the UK. HARVEY Maps has you covered.

Cambrian Way

At 479km long, this challenging mountain trail, from Cardiff Castle to Conwy Castle, takes 3 weeks to complete. The route goes over many of Wales' major mountains and takes in its finest scenery, including both Bannau Brycheiniog and Eryri National Parks.

Wales Coast Path

The first path in the world to follow a country's coastline in its entirety, this 1400km trail is an incredibly varied route that offers rugged and unspoilt walking, colourful seaside villages, industrial archaeology, clifftops, beaches and unique heritage sites.

Glyndŵr's Way

Running from Knighton to Welshpool, this National Trail takes you through beautiful moorland, farmland and woodland of mid-Wales, serving up some beautiful landscapes including the tranquil Radnorshire Hills, the shores of the Clywedog Reservoir and heather clad Plynlimon.

Offa's Dyke Path

Also a National Trail, this 285km long route runs along the border between Wales and England, connecting Chepstow in the south to Prestatyn in the north. For the very brave, this connects with the Wales Coast Path allowing you to do an entire loop of Wales!

EVENT MAPPING focus

A year in the life of HARVEY Maps

A company with its roots firmly in event mapping, we have nearly 50 years' experience in providing maps for outdoor events, fell races and mountain challenges, including well-known names such as the OMM, the Saunders Lakeland Mountain Marathon and the Spine Race.

WINTER SPINE

Northern England, Organiser - THE SPINE

This is one of the world's toughest ultra-marathons. 431km non-stop along the Pennine Way will push elite athletes to their limits, especially in winter!

HARVEY Maps has strong ties to the Spine Race and starting from 2026 is proud to be producing bespoke maps for both Winter & Summer races.

HARVEY ambassador Sarah Perry (right) took on this year's Winter Spine Race, finishing 4th in the women's race.

Sarah's advice for first-timers is to "purchase the Pennine Way maps and get out on the route! You end up running mostly in darkness on this event and it's nice to let your mind drift back to the recces you enjoyed."

"The SPINE CHALLENGER was the first time I stood on a start line and wasn't even sure what day I would finish on - it was such an adventure. I have done it three times, and each one has been so different."

Jen Scotney, HARVEY Maps Ambassador & author of Running Through the Dark

THE NORTHERN TRAVERSE

Northern England, organiser - Ourea Events

A coast-to-coast adventure covering 300km and over 6,500m of ascent, the race takes runners through three of England's finest landscapes: the Lake District, the Yorkshire Dales, and the North York Moors. Shorter race options crossing just the Lakes, Dales or Moors are available for those not ready for the full traverse - yet!

THE FELLSMAN

Yorkshire Dales, organiser - The Fellsman

For more than six decades, the Fellsman has stood as one of the most iconic challenge events in the UK. It's a test that oozes grit, charm, and adventure.

For its 50th anniversary in 2012, the Fellsman teamed up with HARVEY Maps and The North Face to produce its first official map - an instant favourite with participants.

CAPE WRATH ULTRA

North West Scotland, organiser - Ourea Events

A legendary multi-day expedition race through the wilds of the Scottish Highlands, covering 300km over eight days. Runners journey north through a landscape shaped by mountains, lochs, and sea. To further cement our connection to the race, former HARVEY cartographer Lewis Taylor (right) finished 3rd earlier this year!

SKYE TRAIL ULTRA

Isle of Skye, organiser - GB Ultras

At 125km long and with a total of 3,000m of elevation gain, the Skye Trail Ultra is no walk in the park. A hard copy of our Skye Trail map is mandatory kit for all entrants which helps guide runners from Duntulm to Broadford across one of the most iconic islands in Scotland.

THE SAUNDERS LMM

Lake District, organiser - Lakeland Events

An annual two-day mountain navigation event for teams of two runners. The first SLMM was in 1978, and has taken place every year (excluding years affected by Foot and Mouth and Covid), using HARVEY maps since 1992.

© Simon Oxley

BEACONS WAY ULTRA

Bannau Brycheiniog, organiser - GB Ultras

161km across one of the UK's most loved national parks. Runners must navigate the route independently and are required to carry a map and compass at all times during the race. Entrants are able to get 20% off the organiser-recommended HARVEY Beacons Way Trail Map.

SUMMER SPINE

Northern England, organiser - The Spine

A companion event to the Winter Spine but by no means the easy option - this is regarded as one of the world's toughest ultra marathons. A non-stop race for 431km along the Pennine Way that pushes elite athletes right to their limits. Our Pennine Way Trail Maps were once part of the mandatory kit, but from 2026 we are thrilled to be producing bespoke event maps for the Spine Race.

LAKELAND 50 & 100

Lake District, organiser - Lakeland 100

Marc Laithwaite, event organiser, said "It began 18 years ago with just 60 people but we never expected it to grow into the UK's most well known ultra race and HARVEY Maps is the obvious choice for the event. These days, it seems map reading is a dying skill, yet everyone still wants a HARVEY Lakeland race map as a souvenir and many end up framed on people's walls."

MOURNE MOUNTAIN MARATHON

Northern Ireland, organiser - Mourne Mountain Marathon

A 2-day navigation event where the use of GPS is forbidden. Competitors must work out their own routes between control markers. The event courses are planned on the HARVEY Mourne Mountains Superwalker and is the recommended map on the event's mandatory kit list.

RACE ACROSS SCOTLAND

Southern Scotland, organiser - GB Ultras

An immensely popular ultra race going coast-to-coast along Scotland's Southern Upland Way. The 346km route attracts runners from all over the world.

A hard copy of our Southern Upland Way Trail Map is part of the mandatory kit for all participants, a testament to the map's accuracy and suitability for race conditions.

THE DRAGON'S BACK

Wales, organiser - Ourea Events

A six-day, 380km mountain race across Wales that is widely regarded as one of the most prestigious and challenging multi-day races in the world.

Runners face long days tackling a variety of different landscapes, and in doing so they ascend more than twice the height of Everest. The route starts in Eryri (Snowdonia), passes through rural mid-Wales, and finishes in the Black Mountains.

The race attracts elite and experienced runners from around the globe. Alongside the full course, the new 2-day challenges (Dragon's Fire and Dragon's Tail) provide shorter alternatives to the race.

The event has been mapped by HARVEY since 2017, and the inaugural map won the 2017 Stanfords Award for Best Printed Mapping, presented by the British Cartographic Society.

RING O' FIRE

Anglesey/Ynys Môn, organiser - Ring O' Fire

A 209km ultra-endurance race that circumnavigates the island. The event has earned a reputation as one of the UK's most challenging footraces. "HARVEY Maps has been a trusted partner throughout... The clarity and reliability of the maps are second to none. It's not just about endurance - it's about judgement. HARVEY help runners make the right call." J Bingham, Race Director

THE OMM

Various locations, organiser - The OMM

The OMM is recognised as the gold standard in UK Mountain Challenges. It is a self-reliant 2-day journey through some of the UK's finest mountain terrain, covering a new area each year, and is a true test of mountain craft and resilience. After competing in 1976, Robin Harvey co-founded HARVEY Maps and was commissioned to produce the 1977 event map. The first of many, including 2025's event.

ALL YEAR ROUND

The work never stops here at HARVEY Maps! Throughout the year we are always working hard to deliver the best possible maps for running and trail events, some of which are mentioned below.

FELL RACE MAPS

HARVEY Maps produces fell race maps in collaboration with Pete Bland Sports for 34 events throughout the year. With distances starting at 8km it can be a perfect introduction for those wanting to experience the fell and hill running community.

Steve Paterson, Events Manager at Pete Bland Sports, said: "Our partnership with HARVEY Maps goes back to 2010 when Pete Bland and Sue Harvey collaborated to produce a range of fell race maps. Today we cover 34 races across the country. The partnership has been hugely successful, and we hope to continue it long into the future."

SWIFT HALF

Girls on Hills, a Scottish-based trail running guiding company, devised the brilliant Swift Half challenge in Glen Coe and we made the map (below) for it! Starting and finishing at the Clachaig Inn, you'll cover a half marathon, taking in half of Glen Coe's Munros in half a day. If you're looking for a rewarding day in Glen Coe then this is perfect for you!

"I like to think of the Swift Half not only as half of the Munros of Glen Coe in half a day but also the hardest half marathon in the world!" - Keri Wallace treasured feat for even the most experienced mountain runners. That doesn't mean you can't take these rounds at your own pace, or in sections, to see some of the most famous mountain routes in the UK.

Completing one of these is a serious undertaking and a
